The political and entertainment worlds are abuzz with discussion and analysis regarding the contents of President Bush's iPod. The list, released by the White House on Tuesday, reveals a bland and predictable mix of rock classics and country.

What is much more interesting - and surprising - are the songs comprising Bush's previously secret playlist. Released only this morning under a Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request, Bush's other playlist is said to include:

- "Head Like a Hole" (Nine Inch Nails)
- "American Idiot" (Green Day)
- "Sympathy for the Devil" (The Rolling Stones)
- "Rock the Casbah" (The Clash)
- "Ohio" (CSNY)
- "Girlfriend in a Coma" (The Smiths)
- "It's Raining Men" (The Weather Girls)
- "Just Like Heaven" (The Cure)
- "Spirit in the Sky" (Norman Greenbaum)
- "God's Country" (U2)
- "Cocaine" (Eric Clapton)
- "Casey Jones" (Grateful Dead)
- "One Bourbon, One Scotch, One Beer" (George Thoroughgood)
- "Lies" (Thompson Twins)
- "Loser" (Beck)
- "Big Mouth Strikes Again" (The Smiths)
- "What a Shame About Me" (Steely Dan)
- "War" (Edwin Starr)
- "Poppa Don't Preach" (Madonna)
- "Blinded Me with Science" (Thomas Dolby)
- "Southern Man" (Neil Young)
- "Sweet Home Alabama" (Lynyrd Skynyrd)
- "U.S. Blues" (Grateful Dead)
- "Straight Outta Compton" (NWA)
- "Fight the Power" (Public Enemy)
